Casiers Standard. Pavillon Esprit Nouveau, 1925

Cabinets, ash stained walnut or available in black, blue, ochre, green, grey or bordeaux finish with solid wood edges.

The "Casiers Standard" are modular container units available in various colour combinations.

They can be linked by screw fixings by the sides or by the rear walls. When used free-standing with one unit placed upon another, there is a special adjustable plinth base available.

Metal legs and pedestals are also available for certain configurations.

The cabinets are available in the versions: completely closed (by means of doors, downward or upward flaps); open. They can be equipped with internal shelves and dividers.

Authenticity

All the models in the Cassina collection, by merit of their artistic content and particular creative character, are protected by copyright, a legal institution that is universally recognised and safeguarded; legal protection is assured for the whole life-span of the author and for 70 years after his/her death (or the death of the last surviving co-author).

Designer

Le Corbusier, Jeanneret, Perriand

In 1922, Le Corbusier began working in the new rue de Sèvres, Paris, atelier with his cousin Pierre Jeanneret with whom he shared research projects and design criteria in a profound and life-long professional relationship.

In October 1927, the pair decided to draw on the contribution of a young architect who had already begun to establish a reputation on the architectural scene of the time: Charlotte Perriand.

Their collaboration lasted through to 1937 and was extremely fruitful, especially in the field of furniture design. The partnership was highly significant, both in terms of the cultural weight of their achievements and their professional successes.

It was together with Charlotte Perriand that the pair tackled the innovative project for "l'équipement d'intérieur de l'habitation".

The resulting designs were of great intellectual value and considerable commercial success.

Thanks to Cassina's ongoing production, there is continued interest in the conceptual contents of the work and the level of quality attained.

Due to these characteristics, each item in the collection is eagerly awaited.
